Where's the monkey?

Students participated yesterday in an informal sit-down strike on the steps of the Union. They were protesting the reduction in provincial government bursaries by singing such songs as "Pay Me My Money Down". A more formal student delegation will see Youth Minister Paul Gérin-Lajoie today on the problem. For story, see page three.

Debaters best Birmingham

From our own correspondent

BIRMINGHAM, ENGLAND—The debating team of Richard Currie and Gordon Echenberg bounced back from their defeat Monday at the hands of Liverpool University by winning over Birmingham University here last night on a house vote of 127 to 52.

The debate was fought on the resolution "Resolved that this House believes that the British Commonwealth has a role to play".

Today the debaters will travel to Wales where they will debate Cardiff University on substantially the same resolution.

The team's record is now five

wins to one loss. They will debate at Oxford tomorrow and at Cambridge and London next week.

Currie described the debate as "one of the most energetic in which I have participated". A standing-room-only audience regularly punctuated the debate with laughter and applause as both teams displayed their wit.

The debaters, impressed with the skill of their opponents, issued them an invitation to come to Montreal for a debate.

Echenberg, BCL 3, is a Gold A debater and immediate past President of the Students' Society. Currie, BA 3, has had extensive experience in the field of broadcasting.

Medical examinations

There are a number of students who have not kept their appointments or have not as yet made an appointment for the required medical examination.

Students are asked to attend to this as soon as possible and not wait until after the deadline. There is a fine of $25 for failure to have this examination.

Professor Ernst B. Haas will speak to the first plenary session of the McGill Conference on World Affairs tonight at 8:30 pm in Moyse Hall on "Regionalism in Western Europe". The general public is invited to attend.

Dr. H. Locke Robertson, Conference Chairman Joel Bell, and Students' Society President Sonny Gordon will address the opening MCWA banquet at 7 pm in Bishop Mountain Hall.

B.I.R. research

Professor Haas is the Chairman of the Bureau of International Relations of the University of California. He has written and done extensive research on the theory of international relations.

Tomorrow's schedule includes the second plenary session at 8:30 pm in Redpath Hall, to be addressed by Prof. Zbigniew Brzezinski, Director of the Soviet Institute of Columbia University. He will speak on "Regionalism in the Soviet Bloc". The first study groups will also meet tomorrow, in the Bishop Mountain Hall complex, from 9 am to 5 pm.

Study groups

Study groups will meet again Friday morning from 9 to 12. The speaker at Friday's plenary session, at 2 pm in Redpath Hall, will be Prof. J. C. Hurewitz of the Department of Government at Columbia University. His topic will be "Regionalism in the Middle East". Friday evening, delegates will attend a Municipal Government Banquet on St. Helen's Island and hear a panel discussion on "The Impact of International Organization upon Sovereignty". The panelists will be Professors Maxwell Cohen, Michael Brecher, H. Noel Fieldhouse, and Ronald Simmonds.

The final plenary session will take place on Saturday at 2 pm in Redpath Hall. Panelists Clinton Rehling, Assistant to the Managing Director of the United Nations

Special Fund, Prof. Richard W. Stirling of Dartmouth College, and Chief S. O. Adebo, Ambassador to the United Nations from Nigeria, will discuss "The Role of the United Nations as a Political Bargaining Agent".

Martin at dinner

Saturday evening, there will be a closing dinner at the Versailles Room of the Windsor Hotel. The Hon. J. Richard Hyde, Speaker of the Quebec Legislative Assembly, will preside. The guest speaker will be the Hon. Paul Martin, Secretary of State for External Affairs, who will discuss "Canada's View on International Regionalism".

Scarlet Key names four appointments at special session

The Scarlet Key executive has announced the appointment of four new members.

The new members of the honour society are Tim Brodhead, B.A. III, Harold Crooks, B.Com. IV, John Hyslop, B.A. IV, Nii Quao, B.Sc. IV.

Brodhead, Chairman of Public Debates for the Debating Union, is also occupied on a joint McGill-U of M committee on biculturalism. Last year he served as Chairman of the University Model UN.

Crooks has been active in past years on the Debating Union executive and is presently its President. He is a Gold Award debater.

John Hyslop is Editor-in-Chief of this year's Annual, Old McGill '64.

Quao, a member-at-large of the International Students' Association, has been chairman of the Educational and Cultural Committee of the I.S.A. for the past two years.

No liquor at athletics; Infractions to cost $10

by BAYLA SCHECTER

Any McGill student caught with alcoholic beverages at the football game this Saturday will be fined $10 by the Students' Executive Council.

The SEC which passed this resolution at its meeting last night will collect the fine by confiscating the student's identification card until the money is paid. The fine will apply in future to any athletic event in Molson Stadium or at the Winter Stadium.

PGSS Amendment

The amendment to the constitution concerning the Post-Graduate Students' Society, which proposed a division of $10 per student to be: 80% to the Students' Society, 10% to the PGSS, and 10% to the Post-Graduate Trust Fund, has been withdrawn by the SEC.

However, H. Sonny Gordon, Chairman of the SEC, said that both the SEC and the New Union Committee are on record as favouring the establishment of a post-graduate home, and that for a number of years $1 per graduate student has been used towards this objective.

Although this amendment will not be presented to a Students' Society open meeting by the SEC, the PGSS can still call an open meeting. If such a meeting is to be held, advance notice will appear in the Daily.

The Union will impose a fine in future of $5 on all SEC and non-SEC clubs for cancellation of reserved space without 24-hours advance notice.

The McGill Daily is published five times a week by the Students' Society of McGill University at 690 Sherbrooke Street West, Telephone AV. 8-2244. ## Conference with a difference

MCWA VII, which opens today, will definitely be different in character from those conferences which have preceded it. If present plans are carried through successfully, it could also be the best.

The difference lies basically in the number and the calibre of the delegates. This year almost one hundred fifty delegates from forty-eight universities will participate. This is about one and one-half times more than the number of representatives attending any previous Conference.

Far more important than the number, however, is the quality of these delegates. Some of them are professors, and many others are graduate students. Because of their presence, MCWA will in effect be two conferences in one. One section will be composed of those delegates who are undergraduates, while graduates and faculty will be placed in separate group sessions.

Whether this will indeed work out is one of the key questions about MCWA VII. Undoubtedly it will provide for a generally higher level of debate and discussion, at least in one section. Undoubtedly, too, the presence of these eminent delegates can serve to increase the reputation of McGill in general, and MCWA in particular, to the extent that future Conferences will be eagerly attended by leading scholars on world affairs.

There are disadvantages, however. MCWA is a conference run by the students, and it should be, also for the students and of the students. It was conceived as a means of enabling students from various universities to assemble, hear the views of experts, and also express their own opinions on a given topic.

But it may prove impossible to sustain the present dichotomy between faculty and students, and the result in future years could easily be a conference whose only delegates will be professors, and at which the students' only function would be to listen to the speeches. This, we feel, would be a distortion of the aims of MCWA, and is a danger to be carefully guarded against.

The topic of MCWA VII, "International Regionalism", is one which deserves to be fully explored, and the understanding of it is vital to the comprehension of world affairs in general. One has only to look at the tremendous impact caused by the European Common Market to realize the importance of regional planning as opposed to the nationalist policies which preceded it.

The ECM is of course the most prominent example, but manifestations of regionalism are evident in many other areas of the world. In Africa, and in the Middle East newly created countries are passing rapidly from a narrow nationalism to more powerful and more far-reaching regionally oriented goals. Even the once monolithic Communist Bloc is splitting along somewhat regional lines.

MCWA VII should be fascinating, both from the organizational standpoint and because of the importance of the subject under discussion. The Committee members have done a superb job of planning, and have every right to expect that the Conference will be a success. The potential for a top-rate Conference is here; we sincerely hope it is fulfilled.

Three Problems Facing Quebec

2. - EDUCATION

The problems raised by Frère Untel in his Insolences, (published by Editions de l'Homme), and taken up from another aspect by Jacques Tremblay in Scandale au Département de l'Instruction Publique (Editions du Jour) and by S. and M. Chalvin in Comment on abrutit nos enfants (Editions du Jour) were such as to arouse our anger, as are the pitifully inadequate reforms which are being instituted to correct these problems.

Nevertheless an important part of the students produced by this devil's machine which is the Department of Public Instruction, will become university students.

Nevertheless, from another angle, most of the students of the Collèges will one day have the opportunity or money from their parents to mount the steps of this house of higher education which is the university.

It is therefore to the social and financial position of the university student that this article is dedicated.

THE SOCIAL ORIGINS

We know that the university students of Laval, Montréal and Sherbrooke come from four different classes; the bourgeoisie, the middle class, the working class, and rural dwellers. We reclassify them according to the occupations of their fathers: bourgeois occupations — 17%; middle class — 36%; workers — 31%; rural dwellers — 11%.

We note therefore that 53% of the students in these three universities come from families in which the fathers should have an annual income above the average. But, this statement is not very meaningful. The skilled worker, to give one example, earns higher than average wages.

If we look at the annual family income we notice that 61% of the students come from families where the annual income is less than $6,000 and 41% from families with incomes under $4,000.

This means that, generally, more than half of all university students must defray their own expenses in whole or in part.

Now, only 10% of all university students come from families with annual incomes above $8,000 and 13% above $10,000. This signifies "grosso modo" that about 10 to 15% of university students need have no fear for their finances. It also signifies that about 25% are on the margin of uncertainty.

To this total we can add that 45% of the students come from either Montréal, Québec city, or Hull; 23% from other cities with populations over 5,000 people; and that 63% of the students from the bourgeois class live in the three big centres.

It is a fact that accessibility to university depends directly on the family's finances. A second fact is that the less the family income increases, the more chance there is that only one child will go to university.

We will look therefore at the revenues and expenses of the university student.

REVENUES AND EXPENSES

To pursue his studies, the student must have the necessary financial means. Let us look at the revenues established by the sociological survey. They reflect a general average, the totals sometimes differing from the individual figures.

The student who lives with his parents earns $560 (41%) during the summer; he receives $250 (16%) in bursaries, $280 (18%) from his parents, and $100 (7%) in loans. He earns $190 (12%) during the winter, and obtains $95 (5%) in various ways. This makes a total of $1,520.00.

He who lives away from home earns $500 (29%) during the summer; receives $430 (23%) in bursaries, $360 (19%) from his parents, borrows $350 (19%), earns $100 (5%) during the winter, and obtains $100 (5%) by various methods, giving a total of $1,880.00.

To this we must add that the offer of summer employment is becoming more and more rare because of the annual increase in the student population and the continuous decline in summer work for undergraduates.

Let us turn now to the Student's expenses. Generally he spends during the university

by

Michel BEAULIEU

Co-directeur,

le QUARTIER LATIN

year, the amount of $1,859, divided as follows: room and board $590; fees $490; recreation and entertainment $350; clothing $200; travel, personal security, etc., $300. For the student who lives at home this comes to $1,557, for those who don't — $2,116.

To these expenses (calculated in 1962) one must add the increases in fees and cafeteria prices (to take Université de Montréal as the example), an average of $125. This gives us, as the real figures; $1,984 average; $1,682 (for students living at home); and $2,241 (for those living away from home).

He who lives with his parents has, therefore, expenses of $1,682 while he earns $1,520, giving a deficit of $160. He who lives away from home spends $2,241 and earns $1,880, giving a deficit of $361.

To these deficits, one must add summer expenses of $600 ($150 per month for 4 months) for those who live away from home, and about $400 ($100 per month for 4 months) for others. The total deficits therefore rise to $961, in the former case and $560 in the latter.

LA GRATUITE SCOLAIRE ET LE PRE-SALAIRE

It is understandable that, with such deficits general access to universities is closed to many students, and also that the student whose budget is very shaky, never attains the peace of mind necessary to pursue his studies.

Now, this year, many of us have had to face a new increase in fees. Some were able to pay without floundering. Most had to be bailed out.

In establishing "gratuité scolaire", the student will succeed in meeting his budget satisfactorily if he lives with his parents. But this only takes into consideration an average, which signifies that about half of the students will still not reach financial security. Those who live away from home will continue to struggle through on a deficit basis.

Therefore it becomes a question of introducing, over and above gratuité scolaire, an allowance for study which will raise the amount of the bursaries and thus permit the student to attain some of the peace of mind which he lacks.

Access to university based on the social class from which one comes is one of the worst examples of social injustice conceivable. These figures suffice to give an idea of the injustice, but it is only an idea on paper. Those who are forced to actually face this problem, hate it with all their strength.

Taylor on Quebec:

Split in NDP discussed

by Jane Williams

"Perhaps Canada should be set up with two economic plans, one for Quebec and one for English Canada under a coordinating confederal body," Professor Charles Taylor said yesterday while addressing a meeting of the McGill NDP in the Walter M. Stewart Room.

This point arose during Taylor's attempt to explain the relationship between the NDP and the PSQ. Unless the ideals of the PSQ undergo a radical change between now and the next few weeks, the division is essentially this: "NDP stands for a federal Canada with a few changes while the PSQ stands for provincial control with an overall confederal structure and delegated power."

Separatism and the PSQ

But the division is not merely a matter of a party divided — underlying this superficial aspect is the more vital difference over confederation. During the question period, one student asked if this issue of separatism does lie behind the PSQ.

Taylor answered by saying yes, yes and no. "Yes because there are separatists in the PSQ Party who joined when it was formed through a genuine interest in the Party policy, and yes because what the PSQ wants may lead to separatism, but no because the party leaders don't believe themselves to be separatists."

Another student asked if Quebec was now heading inevitably for independence. "No," said Taylor, "we have two choices. One is for the NDP to receive a mandate from the people of Quebec to put them in power in Ottawa where, their requests being refused, they will separate; the other is to wait for some intelligent action from Ottawa, so...". However, the Professor explained that this is merely a "projection of history".

NDP popularity

When asked what the effects of the split on party popularity were, Taylor said that "a great deal of harm had been done". "However," he added, "NDP stock has gone up and when the Social Credit collapses and the Liberals grind to a halt, then the people will turn to the NDP. At this time, the PSQ will be able to prove itself or otherwise."

While the NDP lost a lot of support from among the intelligentsia and the middle class voters as a result of the split, the "grass roots electoral level" where the people are less interested in the national political level and more interested in what directly concerns them, the party has gained support. The PSQ meanwhile has taken the place of the NDP among the other two classes. The prime object of the PSQ right now is to educate public sentiment in their favour.

Centralization problem

Socialism requires centralization. But if this results in "centralization in Ottawa, then French Canada will not get what she wants so badly, and if Quebec becomes centralized, she must have independence." Although both sides want some sort of Canada, the French are forced to accept the latter alternative.

Taylor outlined a Canada in which Quebec and English Canada each took charge of their own development planning while a coordinating confederal government operated the policy angle. The central body would be unable to pass any measures relating to taxation or developmental planning without the consent of both factions.

Students meet today with Gérin-Lajoie

Youth Minister Hon. Gérin-Lajoie will meet the Student Consulting Committee on Bursaries and Presidents of the Students' Societies from all Quebec universities, today, to discuss the problem of bursary distribution and especially, the handling of special cases.

At this meeting, which will be held in the Private Members' Bills Committee Room, students hope to receive answers to suggestions made at the meeting of the Students Consulting Committee on Bursaries which took place last Sunday at the Université de Montréal.

One of the recommendations made on Sunday was that the following cases should be given special consideration: students whose parents are both dead or whose family revenue is limited because of illness; students who pay a pension at home.

Also suggested as special cases were students who could not find work in the summer or who earned less than average; students who are financially divorced from their parents; and families which have two or more students in college.

The students next recommended that a committee should be set up to study these special cases; that there should be a student representative on the reviewing committee, and that all standards to be used by the committee should be publicized.

Red Wings name eighteen new members

Eighteen new members have been appointed to the Red Wing Society.

They are as follows: Beatrice Briggs, B.A.2, Margaret Singleton, B.A.2, Susan Bohm, B.A.3, Bonnie Stern, B.Sc.3, Carolyn Tincombe, M.Sc.3, Mary Trott, B.Sc.3, Marilyn Adderley, B.Sc.N.4, Susan Begg, B.Sc.4, Carole Brainin, B.A.4, Doris Haukland, B.A.4;

This Is MCWA

The Seventh Annual McGill Conference on World Affairs has as its theme "International Regionalism."

This topic concerns itself with the evolution of geographical power blocs and the sovereignty of the nation-state. Recent developments in this field have seen the world organized into four main areas — the Americas, the Soviet Republics, Middle East, and Africa. The speakers that have been invited are renowned experts in the politics of each of these regions.

Professor Ernst Haas has as his special interests the study of the regional organization in Europe and Latin America, while Professor Zbigniew Brzezinski specializes in the politics of the Soviet Union.

Panels Featured

One of the many unique features of this year's MCWA VII is the fact that there will be two panel discussions. Friday evening Professors Michael Brecher, Maxwell Cohen, H. N. Fieldhouse, and Kenneth Simmonds, two of whom are at McGill, will be talking on the impact of international organizations upon sovereignty. This panel is not open to the public. The second panel will be composed of delegates to the United Nations and a professor of Government. This is the first time that the United Nations has ever been actively involved in a conference on the McGill campus.

Another interesting feature about this year's Conference is the fact that plans are being made for the preparation of a post-conference compendium. It is the hope of the executive that this endeavour will be successful, and that the compendium will be made available in a book format.

However, the most significant contribution of MCWA VII to McGill University is that in addition to having created an awareness of, and an interest in, controversial problems of international scope solely on McGill campus, the Conference has reached the public at large. Many of this year's events would not have been possible if not for the generous assistance, financial and otherwise, and co-operation which MCWA received from a number of firms in Montreal.

Far and Wide

The Conference itself is nation wide in so far as delegates will be coming from as far away as University of British Columbia and from Dalhousie in the Maritimes. Following Canada's motto — the Conference stretches "From Sea to Sea". Representing the United States will be delegates from Arizona State University, Brandeis, Rutgers and other Eastern Universities. All told there will be between 45 and 50 different universities sending representatives to MCWA's latest endeavour.

How It Started

Over two thousand years ago, Socrates claimed that the unexamined life is not worth living. This process of probing and questioning political society has increased, particularly with the complexities of the twentieth century.

Through modern technology and science, our conceptions of time and space have contracted due to the shrinkage of the global system. Political actions and decisions today have assumed a greater significance and importance for the human community than they ever have since the time of the Greeks. It is the university campus which is the focal point of intensive examination and discussion.

Hence the McGill Conference on World Affairs — an attempt to explore vital political issues by an interested representation of students and professors from Canadian and American Universities; an attempt to understand the processes of change on the contemporary international scene.

In The Past

MCWA I dealt with "Aspects of Canadian Foreign Policy". The two keynote speakers were the Rt. Hon. Lester B. Pearson, and Dr. Hugh Keenleyside. A second highly topical subject was the theme of MCWA II, "Canada and the U.S." A change in Canada's government suggested a discussion of the political, economic, military and cultural relations of Canada with the United States. The basis of the conference was expanded and delegates from fifteen American universities attended.

It was not until MCWA III that the conference theme was widened to include problems of international importance, when "Underdeveloped Countries" were discussed. Other topics have been "Democracy in North American Society" in 1960, with Professor Max Lerner and Professor Frederick Watkins; and "The New Europe" in 1962, with Professor Robert Strausz-Hupe and the Rt. Hon. Viscount Amory. This year the Conference features the topic of "International Regionalism" with Professor E. B. Haas, Professor Z. K. Brzezinski, and Professor J. C. Hurewitz.

And This Year

This year, the Conference, under the Chairmanship of Joel Bell, hopes to provide a strand of analysis for a new international problem.

And, as in the past, the Conference is not intended merely for the elucidation of delegates, but also for the information of the public at large. Joel Bell says, "The achievement of our aims depends not only upon the concern of the academic members of society, but also upon the participation of students and the general public. We therefore invite your attendance at these sessions."

"We are extremely proud to be able to present this programme to you, and gratefully acknowledge your support."

Ernst B. Haas

The opening of this year's Conference brings to McGill a well-known expert in the field of European affairs, Professor Ernst B. Haas. Born in Frankfurt, Germany, he received his Ph.D. from Columbia University for his work in Public Law and Government. In the field of research, he has given special study to the problems and theories of international relations, with particular emphasis on the concepts and processes of international integration. His interests lie in the analysis of the agencies of the United Nations, and the regional organizations in Europe and Latin America.

Professor Haas has served as Vice-Chairman of the Department of Political Science at the University of California at Berkeley. At present he is the Acting Chairman of the Bureau of International Relations. Among his many articles and publications are such notable works as The Uniting of Europe, Dynamics of International Relations, and International Integration and Labor Standards.

Professor Haas will open this year's MCWA sessions with an address on "Regionalism in Western Europe" in Moyse Hall tonight, the time is 8:30 pm, and the public is invited.

The address could cover such

Z. Brzezinski

Among the notable scholars in the field of international politics and the Soviet Union in recent times is Professor Zbigniew Brzezinski, Director of the Research Institute on Communist Affairs, Professor of Public Law and Government, and member of the Faculty of the Russian Institute at Columbia University.

To his analysis of modern political realities, Professor Brzezinski has brought his eastern European heritage. He was born in Warsaw, Poland, in 1928, but received a western education — a B.A. and M.A. in Political Science at McGill and a Ph.D. in Political Science at Harvard in 1953. The result has been an exceptionally acute and meaningful penetration into the study of the political process, comparative government, and international politics.

topics as the Common Market, free trade areas, and joint defence pacts. As is the case with the other keynote speakers, Professor Haas' topic of address is on his field of particular interest and study.

He has written over thirty articles in the following periodicals: Foreign Affairs, Journal of International Affairs, World Politics, and the Journal of Politics. In addition, Professor Brzezinski has been the author of, or contributed to, six books on the Soviet Union. His works include The Permanent Purge; Politics in Soviet Totalitarianism; Totalitarian Dictatorship and Autocracy; Ideology and Power in Soviet Politics.

Professor Brzezinski is scheduled to address the Second Plenary Session tomorrow. The place is Redpath Hall, the time is 8:30 pm, and the topic is "Regionalism in the Soviet Bloc". This address is open to the public; it could deal with the points of unity among members of the Bloc, as well as with such points of stress as the Sino-Soviet dispute.

J. C. Hurewitz

Born in Hartford, Connecticut, Professor Hurewitz was educated at Trinity College and at Columbia University, where he has been teaching since 1950. During the war he served as Senior Analyst in the Research and Analysis Branch of the Office of Strategic Services, transferring in 1945 to the Research and Intelligence Division of the Department of State.

In 1949-50 he was a Political Affairs Officer in the Department of Security of Council Affairs at the United Nations Secretariat. He has been a member of the Board of Advisory Editors of the Middle East Journal from its inception, and on the Near and Middle East Committee of the Social Science Research Council from 1951-1958.

Professor Hurewitz's is "Regionalism in the Middle East". The address will take place at the Third Plenary Session in Redpath Hall on Friday at 2 pm. There is more than enough material to cover under the given heading; Arab unity and disunity, and the constant efforts of Nasser of Egypt have been making headlines for a good deal of time now.

In the case of all the above addresses, students of particular topics are well advised to attend at least the speech dealing with their specialty. The opportunity presented this week does not come often enough to be bypassed.

The Hon. Paul Martin, M.P., Secretary of State for External Affairs, was born of French-Canadian parents in Ottawa, in 1903. He received his academic training at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, Cambridge University, Harvard, and the Geneva School of International Studies. He became a member of Parliament in 1935 and has represented the constituency of Essex East ever since.

As a diplomat, Mr. Martin represented Canada at the 19th Assembly of the League of Nations in 1938. He has served Canada in the U.N. General Assembly, in the Economic and Social Council, and at disarmament conferences, acting also as the Chairman of the Canadian delegation to the U.N.

National Health program in 1948, development of the federal Old Age Security Plan in 1951, and the introduction of the Hospital Insurance Diagnostic Services Act in 1957.

Mr. Martin is scheduled to speak at the closing dinner, to take place at the Versailles Room of the Windsor Hotel. The event, which is open only to delegates, will be presided over by the Honourable J. Richard Hyde, Speaker of the Quebec Legislative Assembly.

The topic of the evening will be, "Canada's View on International Regionalism". Because of his official position in the Government, delegates may hear close to official commentary on the political and economic blocs discussed throughout the sessions of the previous three days.

The U.N. Panel

Two Representatives to the U.N. and a Professor of Government make up this panel; it is the one panel discussion which is open to the public.

The topic under consideration will be, "The Role of the U.N. as a Political Bargaining Agent"; it will take place on Saturday, at 2 pm in Redpath Hall. The panelists are as follow:

Chief S. O. Adebo

Chief S.O. Adebo, C.M.G., is the Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary, Permanent Representative to the United Nations, and Commissioner-General for Economic Affairs for Nigeria.

He was educated at King's College in Lagos, and received both his Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Laws from London University. From 1957 to 1960 he successfully organized and carried out the replacement of British senior officials by Nigerians in the top posts of the Western Nigeria Civil Service.

In 1963, Chief Adebo was awarded an honorary Doctorate of Laws by Western Michigan University.

Clinton A. Rehling

Clinton A. Rehling, Assistant to the Managing Director of the United Nations Special Fund, majored in Political Science at Grinnell College, Iowa, where he received a B.A. in 1939.

He began his career with the United Nations in April of 1947 as an information officer at the European Office in Geneva. In 1956 Mr. Rehling was appointed External Relations Officer at the European Office of the United Nations, and, in 1959, he assumed his present position with the United Nations Special Fund.

Richard W. Sterling

Richard W. Sterling was born in Los Angeles and completed his education at Yale University where he received his B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. in International Relations.

During World War II he served in the United States Army. He was engaged in counter-intelligence work in Germany and at the Nuremberg War Crimes Trials as research assistant in the case against the SS and against Arthur Seyss-Inquart.

From 1947-1951 Professor Sterling served in the Foreign Service doing political reporting on the Soviet Zone of Germany, and he directed the information and propaganda efforts toward the population of present day East Germany.

In 1954 he entered the Department of Government of Dartmouth College where he is now a full Professor of Government.

The McGill Panel

The McGill Panel is made up of four professors from the University. It will be in session Friday evening at a Municipal Dinner, given for the delegates by the City of Montreal at Ste-Hélène de Champlain Restaurant on St. Helen's Island. The event is not open to the public. The panelists are as follows:

Michael Brecher

Professor Michael Brecher received his B.A. from McGill University in 1946. At Yale University he obtained his M.A. and Ph.D. in International Relations in 1948 and 1953 respectively. He has travelled extensively throughout the East, visiting and doing research in Israel, India and Pakistan.

He was awarded the Watumull Prize of the American Historical Association in 1960 for his book, Nehru: A Political Biography. He has just completed a new book, The New States of Asia, which is scheduled for publication early in 1964.

Maxwell Cohen

Professor Maxwell Cohen has been affiliated with McGill University's Faculty of Law since 1946. In 1960 he was appointed Acting Dean of the Law Faculty, and a year later he was made Director of the McGill Institute of Air and Space Law.

Professor Cohen has served as a Canadian delegate to the United Nations, and is a member of the National Executive of the United Nations Association in Canada.

H. N. Fieldhouse

Professor H. N. Fieldhouse has been the Kingsford Professor of History at McGill University since 1945. He has served as Chairman of the Department of History from 1947 to 1962.

In 1948 he was appointed Dean of McGill College, and left this position in 1962 to accept the post of Vice-Principal (Academic). Dean Fieldhouse has been a Fellow of the International Institute of Arts and Letters since 1959, and is Past President of the Canadian Historical Association.

Kenneth Simmonds

Professor Kenneth Simmonds comes to McGill from England. This year he was appointed Deputy Director of the British Institute of International and Comparative Law in London.

Since 1960 he has served as Secretary of the United Kingdom National Committee of Comparative Law. His special interests are in the field of public international law, comparative law, and international organizations.

Redman squad oppose YMHA in polo game

Tonight at the Currie Pool, the McGill Water Polo team take on the Y.M.H.A. squad in a battle for second place. The Redmen poloists should fare much better this week as compared with their 12-2 loss to Concordia last Wednesday evening. Concordia, one of the finest teams in Canada dominated the game with their superb play and powerful shooting. Leading the way for their strong squad was Pantovic, who scored six goals.

Tough opponents

Y.M.H.A., victorious over Sir George in the second game of last week's doubleheader, should prove to be formidable opponents for the Red and White. However, Coach Shiller has his Redmen squad set for this week's encounter as the team has been working hard all week on their passing, swimming and shooting. There is no doubt in the coach's mind that the Redmen will be able to handle their opposition.

In tonight's second game, Palestre Nationale will play Sir George in a battle for last place. Next week McGill opposes Sir George in the first O.S.L.I.A.A. match.

Excerpts From Canadian University Press

by

On student support...

It seems that McGill is not the only university facing a lack of student support at college football games. Two of the three papers which I read echoed words similar to those which Eric Walter wrote in his column on October 8, which reads in part: "Could this lack of enthusiasm (of the team) be attributed to the humiliation suffered due to poor student support at the Friday night pep rally?"

The Varsity

"It was fine when college football did not face the competition it does today. But today there are other factors at stake.

The main one is University pride.

What pride does a football player feel when he knows the University as a whole doesn't care whether he plays or not?

The university should not sell football to make a profit. But it should not let interest slip to where it is today, forsaking the pride of a great university.

The U of T Athletic Association has to start selling its football. It has to stake its claim in a highly competitive market. Anything can be sold if there is a salesman to do the selling.

The U.T.A.A. must delve into a detailed program of public relations. A new attitude must be engendered.

This University is a proud one. It should not be satisfied with second best."

Rick Kollins

Loyola News

"The enthusiasm of student support still remains the backbone of most college activities and this factor has taken on only modest proportions at Loyola.

Admittedly the situation has some encouraging signs of taking a turn for the better. The presence of the Boarders Society cheering group, the band which we hope will soon turn out in greater force, and the cheerleaders have contributed to boost student spirit."

Kevin Johnson

The Carleton

The situation seems to be quite different at Carleton University though. Two weeks ago the Ravens played Loyola here in Montreal. About 350 students travelled to Montreal for the game — that is, about 20% of the total student enrolment. This is an excellent showing, compared to the 3% of McGill's students who travelled to Kingston last weekend to support our team. The fine Carleton showing prompted one of the Raven coaches to quip: "We better win this one." They did.

It is just my theory, but perhaps if a greater number of our 'loyal' students travelled to Kingston, we might still be in the running for the coveted Yates Trophy.

If you have a bad memory—here's why

Why do you sometimes forget what happened yesterday, but easily recall events of years ago? This mystery has baffled scientists for years—but now we're finding out how the incredible process of our memory works. ## Talking Football

By ERIC WALTER

Although the Redmen have been unable to defend their Senior Intercollegiate football title successfully, the season is far from over for them. The coaching staff is already thinking about next season and the remaining two games should give them an opportunity to experiment a little.

A play that was used to good advantage by both teams in this weekend's encounter was the draw. It is called a draw play because it "draws" the defensive linemen into the offensive backfield. The situation for which this play is designed is one of long yardage, although it is sometimes used to offset a heavy pass rush.

When McGill runs this play, they usually scrimmage the ball from a double wingback formation. All the potential receivers, Potter (78), Lambert (72), Cullen (75), and Taylor (32) run deep pass patterns to clear away the defensive halfbacks and to make the play appear as a passing play. The linemen prepare to block for a pass but give the defensive player opposite them access to their backfield from the outside. The center will usually allow his man through on the left side. The halfback, Johannson (29), and the fullback, Howlett (30), move to meet the charging defensive ends. Quarterback St. John (12) drops straight back as if to pass but hands off to Howlett who has changed direction and takes the ball over right guard. As most of the defensive linemen should be rushing the quarterback, when the fullback gets the ball, five blockers, Narvey (60), Marshall (58), Hart (45), Bellemare (52), and Feidler (66), generally provide enough interference to give the ball carrier a sizeable gain.

Hockey Redmen beware

The Hockey Redmen will get a run for their money when the Women's hockey club gets underway when the Intramural tournament starts November 12. Intercollegiate meets are on the schedule for the next term.

Teams for the intramural league must consist of members of the same faculty, fraternity, or residence. The lists should be handed in to the RVC Phys. Ed. office before noon, Friday November 8. The games will take place every Tuesday at 1 pm in the Winter Stadium.

The only requirement for players is enthusiasm and a pair of skates. Helmets and gauntlets will be provided, but other protective devices can be supplied by the players if they feel the necessity. The Women's Athletic Association is not responsible for injuries to any player.
